Prosperity 'Bee' Improves School

The ratepayers of Prosperity school district with the worthy object of beautifying their school and at the same time keeping down taxation, turned out in force to a "bee" party and put in three days of labor.

As a result of their efforts the schoolroom has been ceiled with wall board, and the interior decorations have been renewed with fresh coats of paint and varnish.

The following ratepayers attended the "bee" and donated their labors: Adam Spence; Alf. Spence; Ted Spence. I. Neil, W. O. Harris, Dan Ferguson; Clarence Hallowell; J. Bell; G. Bell; C. Miller; W. Rodden; H. Hassall.

Saving Certificates

Net sales of Alberta provincial savings certificates for the first five months of 1924 total $1,259,775, a much larger net sale than has ever been previously recorded. The purchase of savings certificates to this extent for the period stated is some indication of improved conditions in the province.

Barn Burned; Insurance Lapsed

Fire destroyed the barn of J. Sylverson, a half mile south of Hardisty about 10 o'clock Thursday night. It is supposed that the fire was due to spontaneous combustion of green feed stored in the loft. The property is a total loss as the insurance had expired a few days previously and had not been renewed.

$1260 Claimed From Edinglassie School District

Regular meeting of the trustees held at the office of T. H. Saul at 2 o'clock p.m.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved on motion P. H. Perry. Carried.

Mr. Reinhart reported school grounds partly cleaned up, and the inside of the school had been cleaned by the Board and the ladies gratis.

Statement of claim from Mrs. Keane in the sum of $1262.40 was read, and Mr. Perry moved that this be returned, and Mrs. Keane be asked to forward same through the proper channel, and if same is regularly served, the Secretary is to arrange for entering or to enter defence. Carried.

Mr. Reinhart moved that one load of wood be purchased from Mr. Newstead as per contract. Carried.

Chairman appointed Mr. Reinhart as a committee to interview the teacher re janitor work. Carried.

Chairman then declared the meeting adjourned. Carried.

Roros School Trustees Meeting

Regular meeting of the trustees of Roros school was held at the office of T. H. Saul, July 31st at 2 o'clock p.m.

All trustees present M. Nysetvold presiding.

Prompt Action Saves Child

Falling in front of the Continental Limited, the Canadian National train which leaves Saskatoon at 5.30 for points east, as it reached the crossing at Lorne avenue, Saskatoon, a small child had a narrow escape from death. The youngster was about to cross before the train, and fell as the engine had almost reached the spot. Quick action by the engineer in apply ing the brakes saved the child. As a result the Limited was forced to back into the yard to get a fresh start. at the incline.

Theft, Vagrancy, Carrying Arms & Assault Charges

Several cases were on the docket for hearing at Marsden, Tuesday August 5th, when J. P.s J. W. Coe and H. B. Polkinghorne took their seats on the magisterial bench. A. H. Webber, on a charge of indecent assault was convicted to sixty days imprisonment with hard labor without the option of a fine.

Walter Dingman was charged with vagrancy, also being accessory before and after in a case of theft, and for carrying concealed arms on person. On account of his youth, and it being his first recorded offence, he was given a light sentence, and fined $34, including costs.

George Anderson, charged with theft and vagrancy was fined $31, including costs.

Chauvin Agricultural Society Gains Good Headway

The directors of the Chauvin Agricultural Society held a busy session last Saturday afternoon, in Mr. A. E. Keith's office.

The secretary, Mr. P. H. Perry, gave a statement of the fair, as far as it was at that time possible to prepare. This showed the fair to be a financial success, and the society to be in better position financially than usual. The directors being well pleased with the support given by all to the fair, though they were somewhat disappointed with the decrease in the entries of pure-bred cattle.

They proceeded to review the experience gained this year, and made a list of proposed revisions for next year's prize list.

Chauvin School Trustees Meeting

The regular meeting of the trustees of the Chauvin school district was held at the school at eight o'clock, August 4th 1924.

All members present, Mr. A. E. Foxwell presiding.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved on motion of Mrs. T. H. Saul.

Letter of approval from the department as to contract and specifications of new building was filed on motion of Mr. J. A. Code.

Trustees inspected the new school building and expressed satisfaction with the whole work. The account of Mr. Goede of $950 contract price, and $13 extras for additional window was then presented; and passed for payment on motion Mr. Code—Mrs. Saul.

Mr. Foxwell moved that the old building be calcimined—the high schoolroom ceiling have one coat of white paint, the additional room have one coat oil paint on the outside; and the floor to be oiled—that the cupboards be moved to the old room,—and that

The Scottish Harvesters on the completion of the harvest, departed from Ribstone to all ends of Canada. The succeeding article refers to the doings of George Swan and Tommy Campbell, the expert stookers of the prairies.

On the evening of October 20th 1923 the two Scots left Ribstone, and at 11.0 p.m arrived at North Edmonton. The night was dark, and as we observed the large packing house close to the station we immediately concluded that we were in Edmonton. We alighted from the train and looked around us, and when we beheld what we imagined to be Edmonton we sat down upon our baggage and sang the old ditty:

"Oh, Lord, did you deliver Daniel from the lion's den, And so, deliver Jonah from the belly of the whale and then The Hebrew children from the fiery furnace, so we learned when we were young Then, Lord, if you'll just help us, then save us from Edmonton."

After prayer, we started off in search of a place whereon to rest our wearied bones, and we found a hotel owned by a Chink called "Flung Dung Hi." He showed (Continued on page two)

MUDDY CREEK BOTTOM BECOMES BEAUTY SPOT

AN object lesson in reclamation is provided by the present Canadian National station grounds at Vancouver, B.C. Before the site was developed the location was known as False Creek, a muddy stream in the centre of the city over which the tide water from the bay backed. It is now one of the beauty spots of the City of the Lions. The approach to the station is called Thornton Park, in honor of Sir Henry W. Thornton, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railways, who materially assisted the Parks Commissioners by contributing 19,000 yards of earth for the filling and beautification of the grounds. Work on the park area is not yet completed but when finished it will be one of the most attractive railway terminals on the continent. At present thousands of flowers are bursting into bloom and many hundreds of beautiful shrubs in their attractive foliage add their charm.

Gossips might be termed misfortune tellers.

us to a bedroom, but as we did not feel inclined to sleep with the other creatures in the bed, we resolved to sleep on the chairs. We were sleeping peacefully when the back fell off Gordie's chair, and I had to arise from my dream to assist my pal's head to a perpendicular position.

Before dawn we were out of that hotel and on the road in search of a better. A considerable distance further on we entered another hotel owned by a Finn who gloried in the name of "Moonshine Muck". Greatly to our surprise we met two of our Harvester friends, Dick and Paddy. That night we were all sitting in my room recalling old times at Ribstone when we were disturbed by a frightful row in the sitting room beneath us.

We went downstairs to investigate, and the sight that met our eyes was serious and yet humorous. The proprietor was a Finn who stood about six feet four and weighed close upon 300 lbs. When we looked at him, his back was bent over the counter and a diminutive fellow was at his throat. The big fellow's eyes were sticking out of his head like a couple of onions, while the little fellow held in his disengaged hand a piece of a chair which had been broken in the melee. There were seven or eight other Finns in the room, and they were engaged throwing chairs and the pipes from the stoves at one another. We endeavored to restore order, but being unsuccessful, we phoned for the police and had two of them arrested. I asked if this was the general behaviour of Finns, and was informed that they were suffering from excessive drinking of moonshine. As this was only our second night in Edmonton, George and I saw visions of exciting times ahead. However, nothing more exciting ever occurred, as Gordie went to the foothills as a policeman, and I was too busily engaged as an entertainer, while Dick and Paddy left for San Francisco. One event I must record. One morning in Edmonton, when it was twenty below and a wind, I entered the hospital where I worked, and was met by the laughter of my colleagues.

"What is the matter?" I asked Tommy.

I went to a mirror and beheld my nose, white as a snowball. I was mad, not because my pals had discovered my weak point, but because I appreciated the fact that I had a good nose, and it rather annoyed me to see it thus disfigured. Let it be understood that I have what is called a Roman nose, that is to say it is one that roams all over my face.

In the month of May, I received one of my periodical letters from Gordie, in which he informed me he was going to San Francisco, and inviting me to accompany him. I wrote by return informing him that if he came through to Edmonton, I could get both of us down East per cattle truck. He came through two days later, and with a number of my friends, we celebrated the meeting in the Selkirk Hotel. Three days later we left Edmonton, each in charge of a cattle truck bound for Toronto.

On Board The Freight

In our colonist car we had a good number of pals, and they always seemed to make our side of the car their rendez-vous for the day's fun. There was one old gentleman there who must have measured about four feet around the waist. This old spark slept most of the day, and during such times we were greatly amused by the different variety of snores the old gentleman could manipulate through his mouth and nasal organ. He had a habit also of sleeping with his mouth wide open, so one day in a spirit of kindness, I slipped a large onion into his mouth, which had the effect of stopping his melodious snores, also his breath. I'm sorry to say that he did not return any thanks for my kindness. Another day his head was lying well back over the the back rest of the seat, and while he slept Gordie strapped his head to a large grip. When he discovered that his head refused to move, he awoke with the roar of an angry bull. He had the audacity to say that we were a couple of untamed Scotsmen.

We were reconciled again in the morning, as the old gentleman desired to enter the toilet for a wash, when he discovered that he was too stout to enter the small door, as Gordie and I volunteered to push him in, and we entered with him in order to push him out again.

The next day I observed just above my head that a handle protruded from the wall, so out of curiosity I pulled this handle. Suddenly every truck in the train shivered and came to a dead stop. The brakeman came running through

"Who did that?" he yelled.
"I did" I replied
"Oh, you .... fool. You're the .... idiot that ever travelled in a .... train."

I calmly looked upon his distress, then remarked: "Whenever you've recovered from your apoplexy old bird, perhaps you'll tell me what is the matter, but tell me in milder language or you'll find yourself pulled up with a greater jerk than that which we have just experienced"

I then learned that I had pulled an emergency brake. This was a great joke to the other men, but the brakesman and I failed to see the joke. Shortly after this, on the same day, I was giving a song, when Gordie pushed me into a corner, and as I flopped down, my shoulder went through the window. Much to my discomfort the rest all giggled, but the brakesman and I again looked at one another, but this time we were both speechless.

We arrived at Toronto, but as there were thousands of unemployed, and tons of rain, we returned to Edmonton and packed our grips for Ribstone. In the meantime Dick had returned from Frisco, and everyone whom Dick met in the city happened to know me, and by this means he was able to discover that we were returning and the hotel at which we would reside. We went to Calgary, however, for nine days and on our return Dick awaited us. Again we went to the Selkirk to celebrate.

Return to Ribstone

On the Fourth of July we arrived at noon in Ribstone, and at once made our way to the abode of our old friend, Teddy Smith. We accompanied him to the schools picnic, where we engaged in a game of football. As night drew on we felt very stiff, and in the morning we felt so bad that Dick made twenty-five attempts to get out of bed. George made two, then rolled out, and when both were safely on their feet, they, with the help of Teddy, gently raised me into a standing position. We slept in Teddy's and the three of us occupied one bed while Teddy slept on the couch. I slept at the back, George next, and Dick on the outside. Needless to say Dick was outside than inside. It was a night-long fight between Dick and me as to who had most of the bedclothes, while George groaned between the pressure of his two pals. However we worked up an agreement whereby Teddy held Dick in, while George and I turned, and then Dick was assisted in his turning movement, because, previously when Gordie and I turned, Dick was unceremoniously pushed on the floor. The next night we again stayed with Teddy, who is the personification of kindness. We sat up talking, singing, and arguing until well into the morning hours. Prior to going to bed, I went outside to pay a visit to Teddy's arbor, which is just over a stile outside the door. The night was dark, thunder clouds hanging low overhead. The prairie was like a magic place with fireflies flitting about, twinkling everywhere like tiny stars. The trees moved mysteriously in the wind, and to me the place had a haunting feeling which sent a thrill all over me. I went towards the arbor, but stepped back quickly as two eyes stared at me from the darkness. I was afraid and stood rooted to the ground. Suddenly I realized that I might be attacked any moment, and forgetting my stiff joints, I jumped the stile like a steeple chaser and entered the house with a face the color of chalk.

"What's wrong?" said Teddy. In a tremulous voice I remarked that two eyes stared at me from the darkness of the arbor.

Our New Abode

We arranged to take up our quarters in Mr. Tuckwell's shack so Teddy harnessed his team and drove us to his farm for some furniture, while the Chink kindly lent us some dishes. Accordingly we settled in our new abode on the 5th of July which was a Saturday. Dick slept on a cot, while Geordie and I slept upon a mattress on the floor. In the centre of the apartment there were three small loose boards, underneath which was an hole for keeping butter, etc., We were were unaware of this hole until well on in the morning, when we all heard the three boards being blown up out of their position.

Each of us were awake, and in the semi-darkness I saw Geordie in front of me staring with bulging eyes at the open hole, while from the corner, Dick was up on one elbow, and his eyes protruded dangerously from their sockets, and looking at the place where the boards had been. "What can it be?" I murmured in a voice scarcely audible. "A badger," whispered Dick from the corner as he grabbed my dagger.

George was about to speak, but just then a gust of wind sent a cloud of dust through the hole, and we then agreed that the wind was the instrument that had thrown up the boards.

The next day being Sunday, proved to be very stormy, George and Dick commenced frying some eggs, while I was engaged writing this article. Our cooking was all done in the open as we were not in possession of a stove. I heard both of them laughing like hyenas as they brought in the eggs. They were colored black, and as the sand was blowing in clouds, our teeth encountered more sand than eggs—consequently we served up outside a fried egg supper to the gophers, but even they refused the dish offered them.

Despite all these disadvantages and fearsome experiences, our life is a life of laughter and fun, and as we are rehearsing for our concerts we are deriving further amusement.

We send out a hearty invitation to all those who know us and to those who do not know us, to pay a visit to our mansion in the suburbs of Ribstone and we shall introduce to all visitors our wardrobe containing all our concert party paraphernalia.

I want to say that while in Edmonton I put on a number of concerts and huge crowds turned out. At one of these concerts, Mayor Blatchford was chairman, and at the conclusion he congratulated me, and informed me that it was the best concert he had ever seen put on in Edmonton. We have some good shows for the people of this district, and my last words are "Look out for the beginning."

MOUNT GEIKIE CONQUERED BY CANADIANS

Two Canadians goes the honor of being the first to set foot on the top of Mount Geikie, 10,854 feet in altitude and the highest peak in the Ramparts Range of Jasper National Park, along the main line of the Canadian National Railways. The party, composed of Cyril Wates, of Edmonton, Malcolm D. Geddes, of Calgary, and Val. E. Fynn, of St. Louis, made their first ascent of Barbican Peak on July 12, and finding the passage too difficult there decided to return and attempt the southeast side, which route had been unsuccessfully attempted in 1922 by Mr. Wates and Dr. Bulyea, of Edmonton. In that year Wates and Bulyea got within 300 feet of the summit when they were compelled to turn back.

Two days later Wates, Geddes and Fynn left camp at 2.30 in the morning and climbed a steep snow gully and up rock chimneys and cracks, one of which led the climbers into the heart of the mountain, finally emerging like a tunnel on the north face with a drop of over 3,000 feet to the Tonguin Valley below. After reaching the altitude where they had been in 1922 the party traversed a narrow ledge encircling the south side of the mountain and reached the top at four o'clock in the afternoon. In doing so they faced a difficult and dangerous rock climb, having to overcome rotten rock and falling stones at many points.

The party descended by moonlight, reaching their camp at 4.30 on the morning of July 15, exhausted but happy over their success.

Other parties are attempting to climb Mount Geikie this summer, but the honor of first reaching the summit must go to Wates, who has just successfully completed his third attempt. Another party, headed by Dr. Thorington, noted American climber, was attempting the ascent with guide Conrad Kain, when they saw the Wates party at the top and turned back.

The illustrations show the serious south side of Mount Geikie; the successful climbers, from left to right, Messrs. Geddes, Fynn and Wates; and their awakening the morning after the ascent

Editorial Comment

Already the heat of summer has passed, the days are drawing in, and evenings becoming shorter; and in a short time the children will be returning to school after their long summer vacation.

Already some of the children are finding time irksome, they are restless and to some measure dissatisfied. This is really a desire to be doing something useful and to resume their lessons—though, of course, the children do not recognize this fact, and would for the most part disclaim it.

As soon as the start has been made the children will enjoy their school work and for a few weeks attack their task with vigor. After this period a falling away in the standard of the work of some of the pupils is to be observed, and every effort or the teacher meets with little response from the pupil. The pupil becomes listless and seems to be unable to or unwilling to apply him or herself to the task, which has now become so distasteful.

This lassitude is far too common in our local schools. It is not the fault of the teachers, but on the other hand is one of the greatest obstacles to the success of their labors with which they have to contend. It is not, in this district, the result of underfeeding nor insufficient clothing. It is, too often, the direct result of parents not insisting that their children get enough of that cheapest of all nature's provisions, viz., sleep.

The curfew bell does not ring in Chauvin, nor in the surrounding district. We were greatly amused recently when telling one Chauvin child of the curfew bell that rang at Lloydminster. Unity and other places, calling children in from off the streets at nine o'clock each evening. The child was frankly disbelieving, and although our statement was corroborated by another person, the child does not seem to believe that statement is true.

This frank disbelief on the part of the child may be regarded as indicative that little parental care is exercised in the matter of insisting that the child has sufficient sleep to provide for its rapid growth and for the necessary vigor to apply to school tasks. The child must have sleep—if not in bed it will be sleepy in school.

We do not advocate that Chauvin should ring the curfew bell each evening at nine o'clock, nor that a constable should be sent round each night to chase the laggards home. This would not be sufficient since it could not serve the rural schools, to which our present remarks apply with equal force. But we do urge, and urge strongly, that all parents co-operate more fully with the school teachers by ascertaining what progress their children make in school and by seeing that their children have each sufficient sleep to enable them to go to school vigorous and fresh the next morning.

Chauvin and district may well take pride in the success of its agricultural fair this year. The fair having successfully functioned, true to the objects for which the society was organized, and true to the purpose for which the government makes a yearly grant.

There was a complete absence of any of the myriads of catch-penny attractions that travel through the country looking for "easy-money" from the hands of ourselves whom these itinerants term "suckers"

On the other hand there was a good measure of support accorded by all sections of the local public to the untiring efforts of the directors in their organization work. This support by the public places the laurel wreath of success on the society's work.

The local press is the only medium whereby the public can express their appreciation of the efforts of the directors of the agricultural society, and it is a pleasure to us to perform this duty. Beginning their work immediately at the close of one fair, they give consideration to needful revisions of the prize list, they arrange for educational meetings, attend to the problems of finance, and, ever with a watchful eye to economy and success, put over the annual fair, the poultry show and seed fair. To do all this requires holding twelve or more meetings per year of the directorate and also a number of special and committee meetings together with a few days extra work at fair times—all this being done perfectly voluntarily. We "take off our hats" to those directors both men and women, who have "taken off their coats" and done so much for the public through their society.

Card Of Thanks

The directors of the agricultural society take this opportunity to thank all those ladies who by assistance in the hall and booth, or by their splendid donations to the booth helped to make the running of these departments both a pleasure to those in charge and a success financially.

All unclaimed sealers can be had at Mr. Forryan's store, and if the unknown donor whose white plate was broken will apply to one or other of the lady directors her loss will be made good by the society

G: "She seems to have everything her own way."

Y: "Well, if she doesn't, everybody gets out of it."

WHO PROFITS MOST ?

Who profits most?

Tis not the man,

Who, grasping every coin he can, Unscrupulously crushes down His weaker neighbour, with a frown;

He is not worthy of his trust, And, friendless, knows his gold is dust.

He loses what he sought to gain And finds instead of pleasure, pain.

Who profits most?

It is not he

Who shirks responsibility, Who, hermit-like, himself withdraws

To live removed from human laws,

Scornful of others' frailties, He turns away, no vision sees Of life's great opportunity.

He is not mourned—why should he be?

Who profits most?

It is the one

Who's on the square in all that's done,

That trusts and helps the other man

And gives a boost where'er he can.

Who puts his task above meere self,

And values friends, and counts them wealth,

Who profits most? Is that your quest?

It is the one who serves the best.

Wealth adds to the wisdom of the wise and to the folly of fools.

Nothing reveals the stuff that is in a man quite so surely as the efforts he puts forth to accomplish the thing he sets out to do.

Edgerton Echoes

We have now been well supplied with moisture for present needs. What is the next complaint?

Considerable inmprovements have been made in the village streets, and now they are all in pretty good shape.

J. H. Walmsley, of Loughheed, officially visited lodge 109 of the I.O.O.F. on Thursday evening of last week. The members present were not large in numbers but a pleasant and instructive evening was spent. The final polish was given in The Cosy after closing.

Autoists are not having such pleasant trips now, some are even falling back on the old nag.

The haggis-eating tribes of Edgerton were out in all their glory last Friday evening. Why? Because the Campbells were comin' They came! They came! The Campbells an' McBeth's an' Swans an' Ainscoughs, a' came an' a' had a hand in the fun.

Oh, it was just that stooking gang of harvesters from Ribstone that came up and put on a concert in Gorton's Hall, last Friday evening. There wasn't a big audience but they were noisy enough with their laughter and applause as each artiste came on and gave their numbers. These boys were sure well received. 'Wallie' McBeth, with his nimble feet received rounds and rounds of applause as did also Tom Campbell with some of his comedy. Swan and Ainscugh excelled themselves in their love-making, although we thought that Geordie's moustache wsa rather forbidding in that comical stunt. They were all fine and it was just the clear whack to chase away the blues. We, ourselves, are rather hard to please in entertainment, but we were tickled with the evening's fun. Go to it, boys; and good luck to you.

Our Short Story 'T, was|The Night'

The Sad Lady and the Lonely Man lived next door to each other, in a rather shabby row in a rather shabby street. The only difference between their houses was that the number on the Sad Lady's door was 157 and the number on the Lonely Man's door was 159; also the Sad Lady had a little red geranium in her front window and the Lonely Man had a brass sign.

Now the Lonely Man was a doctor with a very large practice, and his patients and friends were always telling him that he should move, but he just laughed and said that he didn't have time. But the Sad Lady lived there because she couldn't afford to live anywhere else; and the Lonely man stayed on because there was just a chance that Sonny Boy who belonged to the Sad Lady, might some day have a cold or the measles and he might be called in and thus get to know Sonny Boy's mother. But so far Sonny Boy had proved very healthy, and the Lonely Man despaired of ever seeing more of the Sad Lady than glimpses of her face as she watched for Sonny Boy to come home from school.

He was feeling more lonely than ever on this particular evening; of course he had plenty of friends and would be made welcome in many homes, but it was a home of his own he wanted, with some one who would be waiting for him and who would scold him for tracking snow on to the carpet, and who would make him shake his coat well before coming into the house. For you see, it was the eve of the 24th of December (if you don't know what evening that is you needn't finish this story), and people without homes or families are apt to feel rather out of things then.

The lonely man tramped along thinking enviously of the home he had just left; it was good of old Jim to ask him to stay but somehow he did not just fit in. The glittering tree, the holly wreaths, the delicious crack-

Visiting Sailors Tour Canadian Rockies

Above, some of the sailors are here seen at Banff grouped around the huge Canadian Pacific oil-burning locomotive which headed them through the Rockies. Inset—Perambulating at Revelstoke.

Through the courtesy of the Dominion Government twenty-five officers and two hundred and twenty men of the British Service Squadron on tour were given a trip from Vancouver through the Rocky Mountains as far as Calgary by special Canadian Pacific train, returning by way of Edmonton. The men were selected from the Flag Ship H.M.S. Hood, I.M.S. Repulse and H.M.S. Adelaide. All through the mountains the train was given most enthusiastic receptions from people lining the stations wherever it stopped and shouting their greetings from the smaller ones as it passed. During a stop of two hours at Revelstoke the entire crowd was taken to the top of Mount Revelstoke in automobiles. At Field it seemed impossible to get the train away, so anxious were the people to heap flowers and congratulations on the men. Banff citizens met them with automobiles and showed them around at night on arrival and again in the morning when they visited the bathing pools. The reception at Calgary was equal to that accorded the visiting sailors all along the line, and all day they were entertained at receptions and banquets, closing the day with a ball at the Palliser Hotel for the officers and a smoker at the armoury for the men. Throughout the trip the sailors were as busy photographing as being photographed. All of them have travelled far and viewed the scenery of many lands, but they are unanimous in the opinion that the beauty of the Rockies—Banff National Park, Albert Canyon and so on, is superior and more grand by far than anything else they have seen.

Barber: "Now, my little man, how do you want your hair cut?"

Tommy: "With a hole on top, like dad's!"

"Yes, I am sure our garden is going to be a success."

"So soon?"

"Yes, the chickens have tasted everything and they are perfectly enthusiastic."

THIS WEEK'S WORLD NEWS TOLD IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS

It is announced that vigorous efforts will be made by the Government of Manitoba to effect the actual settlement of 224,000 acres of vacant provincial land now under the administration of the Crown.

For the week ended June 21st traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway amounted to $3,301,000, as compared with $3,159,000 for the corresponding period of 1923. This is an increase of $142,000 or 4.4 per cent.

Reports from the Rouyn gold fields of Quebec continue to indicate a great future for that territory. Development is proceeding apace and the English capital now flowing into Canada in search of good investments is interesting itself in this area.

Three carloads of seed grain are being shipped weekly from the provincial seed cleaning and marketing plant at Edmonton, Alta. About 50,000 bushels of seed grain have been handled by the plant since last fall and 20,000 bushels more will be handled before the year's seeding is completed.

The International Paper Company intends to add two new machines to their plant in Three Rivers, Que., so as to increase their production from 300 to 450 tons daily. Another project is also under consideration, viz., to build a plant in Batiscan instead of enlarging the Three Rivers one.

Graphic and interesting educational motion pictures will bring Alberta's various resources to the eyes of those who attend the British Empire Exhibition this year. In addition to pictures illustrating the life of Alberta's citizens on the farms, on the ranches and in the mining districts, charts will be used to bring out interesting compilations of statistics illustrative of the province's agricultural and industrial output.

Carrying an invitation to the President of the United States to attend the celebrations of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists, which will be held in June, Miss G. Lazier, herself a descendant of the Loyalists, left Belleville recently on horseback to ride to Washington alone, a distance of 600 miles. Elaborate arrangements for the celebrations are being made and it is expected that thousands of visitors will attend.

An attractive booklet entitled, "A Week in Quebec in the Spring," by Betty Thornley, internationally known writer associated with "Vogue" and other magazines, has just been added to the series of artistic pamphlets published by the Canadian Pacific Railway. It describes the Ancient Capital and its environs, is illustrated by many striking photographs and bound in a cover which reproduces in natural colors the pattern of cloth called catalogue, woven by Quebec habitation women.

That the Indian village of Hochelaga, which stood on the site of the present city of Montreal, was a place of about fifty wooden houses having a population of some 4,000 souls when Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence, was the assertion made by Dr. W. D. Lighthall before the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal recently. Dr. Lighthall was able to give the boundaries of the village and described it as resembling the home of Cedric the Saxon, in "Ivanhoe."

Apologies of the recent "Save the Forest Week," E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stated: "A week's concentration on saving the forests of Canada is well worth while—much better to make it a 'Forest Saving Year' and, if the forest resources of this country are to be conserved to adequately avail the greater Canada of a few years hence it must be a 'Forest Saving Generation.' Forest wastage is too tragically too great and we Canadians must pay and are paying for the loss."

Through the generosity of the British Museum, the Fine Arts School of the City of Quebec has been enriched by the donation of a precious collection of books on arts, which contain over 3,000 reproductions of masterpieces. Among historic schools represented are the English of the 14th Century, the Italian of the 16th Century, the German of the 15th Century and the French and Danish of the 18th and 17th Centuries respectively.

For the 12 months ending May 31, Canada had a favorable trade balance of nearly $200,000,000. Exports during that period totalled $1,069,715,880 and imports $873,367,752 in value. This represents an increase in value over the exports of 1923 of $110,000,000 and of $32,000,000 over the imports of that year. The chief increases in exports were noted in agriculture, wood and paper.

The first residence of the Jesuit Fathers at Sillery, which was built in 1639, has been presented to the Province of Quebec by the sons of the late Hon. R. R. Dobell, a minister in the Laurier cabinet of 1896. This house, which stands at the foot of the path outside the City of Quebec up which Wolfe's army climbed to the Plains of Abraham, is the oldest in Canada and the second oldest in North America, the oldest being situated in Florida.

Something new in the way of "stunts" was staged at Montreal on July 4th by the publicity association of that city, as a send-off to Canadian and United States delegates going to the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which opened on July 12 at London, England. The 250 men of the party rolled a huge ball made of wood and canvas through the principal streets from a local hotel to the docks occupied by the Canadian Pacific steamship "Montcalm," upon which they subsequently sailed.

OUR LITTLE ADS DO BIG WORK

The Manitoba Pulp and Paper Company will, it is understood, shortly establish a plant at St. Boniface, near Winnipeg, Man. The company plans to expend $3,600,000 of its $5,000,000 capital on immediate operations, and to build a 200-ton newsprint mill, employing about 700 men.

Canada's trade is growing at a faster ratio than ever before, despite the war. She now sells to 100 and buys from 77 countries. Her total foreign trade, in the calendar year 1923, reached $1,918,264,789, an increase of 16 per cent in one year, and her interchange of commerce increased 76 per cent between 1913-14 and the past year.

John B. Thompson, noted sportsman and writer on the out-of-doors, widely and popularly known by his pen name of "Ozark Ripley," is visiting the Canadian Pacific bungalow camps in Ontario, giving demonstrations of his skill as a fly and bait caster, as well as free casting lessons to guests and informal talks on fishing and other outdoor subjects.

Creating a new record for the 13 years it has been in business, the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company will have handled 50,000,000 bushels of grain through its commission department in the 1923-4 season, it is announced. The estimate of grain handled through terminal elevators for the 1923-4 season is 58,000,000 bushels.

The steel superstructure of the new Ste. Anne de Beaupre Basilica, which is to replace the destroyed edifice at the famous shrine, has now been completed and it is expected that by next July the exterior of the church will be nearly finished. It is not anticipated, however, that the building will be entirely ready until July, 1926. In the meantime, thousands of pilgrims continue to visit the shrine and several miracles have been recently reported.

Figures issued by the Department of Agriculture for the Province of Quebec show that there has been a marked improvement in the condition of farmers of the province over last year, due to good crops, to such an extent that, instead of distributing grain seeds to the value of over $125,000 as was the case last year, only $60,000 worth was necessary to meet this year's requirements. Hon. J. E. Caron, Minister of Agriculture for the province, basing his anticipations on present crop prospects, expects a still further improvement in the near future.

"Never has the opportunity for Canadian business in the Orient been so good as it is today," said Allan Cameron, Oriental Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in Montreal recently. "It is true that the general volume of business in China and Japan is somewhat below normal owing to both local and world conditions but if Canadian manufacturers and producers now fail to make an effort to secure the large share of Oriental trade that would naturally come to them, the opportunity will pass and someone else will get the business."

Following its success at the British Empire Exhibition, the Canadian Pacific Railway is arranging unusually fine displays for fall exhibitions in Canada. At Toronto, the exhibits will include a Northern Ontario hunting scene, having a painted background sixty by sixteen feet, a feature of which will be moose and deer moving through the forest and an attendant guide to give information to enquirers. A full-sized model of the front of a Canadian Pacific engine and other displays illustrative of the company's many activities will also be shown in Toronto. Wonderful electrical models depicting Canadian winter sports, round-the-world cruises, etc., are slated for Quebec, Sherbrooke, London and North Bay.

When an optimist gets the worst of it he makes the best of it.

Mr. G. E. Tymm, who has been relieving at the local bank during the sickness of Mr. J. Murray, has left for the Alliance branch of the bank.

John Duncan has had some good success with his bees, having already obtained some fifty pounds of honey from the hive.

The Meurin family have also imported bees and are quite satisfied with the results of the first summer.

There will be considerable interest shown by the local public in the results obtained by our local apiarists after they have gotten through a full year's work with their bees.

Timeliness is said to be the leading feature of "The World's Applause," a William de Mille production, appearing next Monday in the I.O.O.F. hall, Chauvin and at Edgerton the following night. Public interest has been over recent instances of prominent public personages who have found fame to be as clay when scandal came. A view of the picture will show how closely related the plot of the production is with these recent happenings.

Bebe Daniels and Lewis Stone have the featured roles.

With but few exceptions every child in Chauvin has suffered, more or less severely from the epidemic sickness during the past week. Some cases are also The older the child the more it suffers. It is wise to call in the doctor, and particularly to avoid a second attack or relapse.

We regret to learn that Mrs. S. W. Buckis very ill.

T'WAS THE NIGHT

The lonely man gasped, straighter And blushed a beautiful crimson. "It's the Sad Lady!"

The lady who had just come down the stairs, and who stood looking at him with some surprise, spoke suddenly,

"Why, it's the lonely Man! And grew very pink.

There was a stricken silence; then the lonely man made a grab at the door and said humbly:

"I can't tell you how sorry I am to have startled you so. It was awfully clumsy of me. I must have mistaken the door. I assure you I'd no intention—"

The sad lady smiled.

"It's quite all right," she said. "I was just a little surprised at first, but it's no wonder you made a mistake in the doors. They're so much alike. I wonder—" she hesitated and glanced at him doubtfully, "if you'd help me just a moment, now that you're here?" "I should be delighted," the man assured her.

"You see, I'm trimming Sonny Boy's Christmas Tree, and I can't quite reach the top. But, dear me, you're dripping all over the carpet. Wait till I get a whisk."

Carefully the man brushed off the last snowflake and stepped back into the hall.

"Now what can I do?" he smiled down at her, "having broken into your house this way, I must make myself useful."

"It's this star," she explained. "It always goes on the topmost tip. My husband sent it from Paris the Christmas before he was killed, and Sonny Boy always calls it 'Daddy's Star'. it wouldn't be complete without that"

"I suppose Sonny Boy is in bed and dreaming about Santa Claus," he laughed.

"Yes, he is so excited dear little chappie Christmas is a day out of fairyland for children, isn't it?" Somehow it took them a long time to fix that tree. The man was very particular and much rearranging had to be done before the desired effect was gained. At length, however, the last string of popcorn was hung, the last bits of tinsel scattered on the boughs, and the last little bundle stuffed into an already overflowing stocking.

And then the lonely man took his courage in his hands.

"Say," he began, "I wonder if you will think I've got an awful cheek. I haven't a soul to share Christmas with, and I've a big turkey and a lot of stuff next door that my admiring patients have bestowed upon me. Couldn't we have a combined Christmas dinner?"

The sad lady smiled uncertainly. "It will be beastly lonely," he pleaded, "and it would be such fun to play Santa Claus to Sonny Boy. Besides," he ended triumphantly, "he really needs a mah to show him how to run that train."

"Very well" agreed the sad lady, "If you'll come early and help me cook the dinner."

"You bet I will," laughed the man, "And I'm some cook"

"Good-night and Merry Christmas!" cried the no-longer sad lady, for her cheeks were pink with happiness and her eyes shone bright as the stars on Sonny Boy's tree.

"Good night and Merry Christmas" echoed the no longer lonely man, for had he not now someone to scold him for tracking snow on to the carpet?"

And all the little sparkling stars on the glittering tree inside, and all the big shining stars in the radiant sky outside, winked knowingly to one another and twinkled:
